

Illinois Coal Strike Called Off by Leader

Union President Sends Instructions to 40,000 Workers; Sees Victory in Wilson's Wage Promises

Freight Service Curtailed

Lewis Issues Notice of End of Strike to All Local Organizations in Two States

Special Dispatch to The Tribune
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 31.—The Illinois coal strike was called off at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon by Frank Farrington, president of the state union. Farrington ordered all locals in the state to return to work Monday or as soon after as possible. In telegrams sent to every local in the state he said: "President Wilson's agreement to call a new wage conference means a victory for the Illinois coal miners. Go back to work Monday pending the outcome of these conferences."

Farrington's order, coupled with that from National President Lewis, ends all doubt that the men will return to work.

Not more than a partial opening of the Illinois mines will take place on Monday morning and full crews will not be at work in all the mines for the greater part of the week, according to F. O. McLaughlin, secretary of the Illinois Coal Operators Association, in a statement made to the Tribune correspondent to-night. Mr. McLaughlin based his statement on the time usually consumed in transmitting the word to the local unions and then their calling meetings to act before returning to work.

Farrington sent the following telegram to Secretary of Labor Wilson:

"Continuing our efforts and accepting in good faith President Wilson's announced pledge that he would convene miners and operators in a joint conference as soon as mining operations are resumed, I am today issuing telegraphic instructions to the presidents of every local union in Illinois instructing them to notify their members to return to work Monday morning as soon as possible. The coal shortage in Illinois reached new limits today. Nearly all freight trains were annulled. Unless coal comes from some unexpected place tomorrow, railroad representatives said, some passenger trains would be taken off temporarily.

President Farrington this morning in a telegram to H. C. Adams, Chicago, president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association, protested against the imposition of penalties upon striking day men.

Lewis Issues Orders

INDIANAPOLIS, July 31.—Striking mine workers in Indiana and Illinois today were ordered back to work by President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America. In a telegram directed to every local union in the affected district he instructed that immediate meetings be called and steps taken to get the men back to work.

The telegrams directing the men to return to work were sent out from the national headquarters of the miners this morning.

The opinion was expressed to-day at the headquarters of the miners that they would see the backbone of the strike broken. This action, it was pointed out, would follow the receipt of Lewis's mandatory order.

Officers of the international organization declared that the majority of the miners were loyal to the organization and would not jeopardize their standing by remaining out on an illegal strike, in spite of any action on the part of radicals within their own local unions. It was suggested that the reason many of the miners in Indiana and Illinois did not return to work to-day was because the official order had not been received in time and that Saturday is generally a holiday among the miners. More than a hundred and fifty mines in Indiana, involving approximately 25,000 men, were closed this week and practically all of these will resume operations Monday, according to international officers.

Loyalty Expected of Miners

Reports reaching headquarters from Ed Stewart, president of Indiana District 11, were to the effect that the miners of that district would remain loyal to the international officers and resume work Monday. At the offices of the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators Association confidence was expressed that the coal production in Indiana fields would be back to normal by the first of next week.

In his message to the local unions Mr. Lewis repeated the telegram he received last night from President Wilson insisting that the miners return to work, and thus demonstrate "their good faith in keeping their contract." The President said when the miners returned he would invite the joint scale committee of miners and operators to reconvene for the purpose of adjusting any inequalities in the wage scale agreement signed March 31 at New York.

The telegram of President Lewis to the local unions is preceded by the President's message. It is as follows: "In consideration of the request of the President, as contained in the foregoing, and acting in accordance with the authority vested in me as president of the United Mine Workers, I hereby order and direct all members of our organization who may be idle or on strike, contrary to the provisions of the interstate joint agreement, to immediately return to their employment and permit the normal operation of the mines. Meetings of your local unions should be immediately convened and action taken to comply with this order without further delay. The President's telegram emphasizes the grave responsibility which devolves upon every member of our organization to conform to proper procedure within our union and to discharge their obligations to organized society. It furthermore provides a way to secure consideration of the inequalities in the basic interstate wage agreement. The destroys vermin, germs and their eggs—it is odorless and does not discolor—it leaves your home pure, sweet and fresh—it will sterilize a mattress clean through—it penetrates wall-paper, wood and floors. So positive is this new way that payment is made subject to complete extermination!

Vermination

We can help you—Phone us.

GUARANTEED EXTERMINATING COMPANY

500 FIFTH AVENUE GUARANTEED VERMIN EXTERMINATION

42nd Street New York

Telephone Vanderbilt 2716-2717-2718-4133

Announcements of interest to every one

classified under the heading of "Business

Adverts in to-day's Tribune Want Ad. Page.

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Adverts

Coroner Holds Blow Caused Death of Loftis

(Continued from page one)

incident, but "didn't do anything to Loftis."

Says She Was Lured to Room

Miss Wood in her latest story bore out the housekeeper's statement that girls were "lured," according to Chief Garrity. The girl gave the following version of the events leading up to the death:

"Yesterday afternoon Mr. Loftis called me on the telephone and asked me to come to his apartment. He hinted that he intended to set Mr. Shayne up in business. He wanted to talk it over with me. I had met him two weeks before through Mr. Shayne and thought it would be all right to go. When I arrived at the apartment I found that he had been drinking. He offered me some whisky and I accepted. He then became boisterous. I remonstrated, and was able to quiet him for a time. He then made more bold advances to me. I resisted him and in the friendly tussle we knocked over some furniture. I then grew terrified and fled to the telephone and called Mr. Shayne."

From this point, Shayne took up the story, and, according to the chief, said: "When I arrived at the apartment and opened the door I thought Loftis was in the midst of a mad dance. 'When he saw me,' he cried, 'Come on and join us, Shayne, we are having a hell of a time.' At this instant he slipped on the rug and fell. His head struck the door knob, and he was knocked against the sofa. His neck was twisted and he fell to the floor. I'll never forget the grotesque expression on his face. I dragged him to the center of the room and tried to revive him with water and whisky. I became more frightened and called a doctor."

When the doctor arrived he found Loftis dead. Meantime, Miss Wood left the apartment. Chief Garrity is particularly interested in what transpired after this, as her story is contradicted by a chauffeur, Herman Waxler, who also is being held.

Chauffeur's Story

The young woman said the chauffeur drove her to a south side address. The chauffeur declared the girl approached him and said: "Drive me around awhile and I'll tell you where to go." A considerable period then elapsed and, after stopping at a designated address, the girl appeared with a male companion who told the chauffeur to drive on. The woman asked the chauffeur: "Did you hear me scream?" He said, "No." She continued: "That man robbed me of $100." The chauffeur said he did not report the fact, as she begged him not to.

When they arrived at the girl's home she tried to get away without paying the $12 taxi bill, the chauffeur said, and when he attempted to collect it she had him arrested.

At the girl's home Coroner Hoffman and Chief Garrity were in waiting. They said that before they received them she ran up to her mother and, extending some jewelry, said: "Hide these; I'll tell you about them later." The jewelry, which consisted of a man's ring with settings of two diamonds and one ruby, a watch, a chain and a knife, was afterward identified as belonging to Loftis.

During the afternoon Miss Wood and the chauffeur were driven again over the route which they said they had traversed during the two hours that intervened between Miss Wood's flight from the Loftis apartment and her arrival at her home with the jewels.

Coroner Hoffman swore in a jury this afternoon, but ordered the case held over indefinitely. A post-mortem examination revealed that Loftis had died from "extreme external violence," he said. The cause of death was cerebral hemorrhage.

"The area of the bruise on Mr. Loftis's head indicates that he might have fallen," said the coroner. "However, we are going to investigate the matter thoroughly. We can never tell about a case like this."

Made Wealth by Mail Orders

Loftis originated the jewelry mail order business and became wealthy by selling diamonds, $1 down and $1 a week. He was widely known in the city as a spender.

In 1907 he and his brother quarreled over their partnership, and he was shot by him. He once slapped his wife on a dance floor in one of Chicago's leading clubs, and because of the incident was expelled from membership. Later they were divorced.

Says Speculators

In Soft Coal Make

Exorbitant Profit

Trade Commission, However, Declares Operators Have Been Selling Out at a Small Margin

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Bituminous coal operators have been selling coal at the mines at small profits, according to a report of the Federal Trade Commission for the month of April. The report, however, shows that speculators have been making exorbitant profits.

The Federal Trade Commission's report shows that the average sales price at the mine for 812 operators reporting to the commission was $3.26 a ton. Although the commission's report does not embrace the whole of the bituminous coal industry, the commission says "it is believed that the results shown are fairly representative of the industry."

The commission's quoted price reflects the average that has existed throughout all of the soft coal fields during the entire period of the coal shortage, running up to the end of last month. During this time the range of prices for coal at the bulk of the mines has run from $3.25 to $4, depending upon the relative production cost in different fields.

The commission gives the average reported mine cost a ton during April as $2.76, leaving a "margin" between the cost and the sales price at the mine of 50 cents a ton. The commission emphasizes the point that this margin "is not the same as profit," for out of it must be deducted selling expenses, interest on borrowed capital and other items of expense.

The report asserts that the blame for exorbitant prices lies in the activity of a coterie of speculators who have taken advantage of an upset market.

Father Kills Son by Mistake

Hampshire Farmer Shot as Parent Waits for Berry Thieves

CONCORD, N. H., July 31.—Oliver C. Dimond, a farmer of the West Concord district, was shot and killed late last night by his father, who mistook him for a berry thief, according to reports to the police. Raids upon their berry patch had aroused the ire of the Dimonds. The father said he decided last night to arm himself and lie in wait for the raiders. Unknown to the father, he son decided upon the same course, and when the elder Dimond saw an armed man emerge from the thicket, he said, he fired.

Oliver Dimond died soon afterward. After investigating the shooting the authorities decided no action on their part was necessary.

Dentist Sued For $60,000 in Woman's Death

Brooklyn Man Charges Dr. Crossman Allowed Tooth to Fall Into Wife's Lung During Office Extraction

Lobar Pneumonia Fatal

Plaintiff Asserts Operation Might Have Saved Life if They Had Known Cause

The charge that a tooth was allowed to fall into the lung of Mrs. Cora Minns, resulting in her death, is the basis of two suits for damages brought by George R. Minns against Dr. Victor W. Crossman, a dentist, of 136 Fort Greene Place, Brooklyn.

Mr. Minns has sued in the first action for $10,000, for "the loss of the services of his wife," and in the second action for $50,000, as administrator of his wife's estate. The papers which were drawn by Denis R. O'Brien, attorney, charge that Mrs. Minns went to Dr. Crossman's office to have ten teeth extracted, that the dentist allowed one of the teeth to fall into her left lung, and that he kept her under an anesthetic for forty-five minutes, but did not tell her when she regained consciousness that one of the teeth had fallen down her windpipe. Had she been so informed, the complaint alleges, her life might have been saved by an operation known as tracheotomy.

Autopsy Reveals Foreign Body

Following her visit to the dentist, it is further claimed, Mrs. Minns was greatly troubled with violent fits of coughing, difficulty in breathing, and inability to sleep. A doctor diagnosed her trouble as pneumonia, and she was sent to the Brooklyn Hospital, where she died after three days. An autopsy was performed by Dr. J. M. Van Cott and Dr. Charles Gibbs. The result, according to the attorney, as found in the death certificate furnished by them to the medical examiner, was that "the chief and determining cause of her death was lobar pneumonia. Pulmonary gangrene, left origin foreign body (tooth) in bronchus."

The hospital record furnished Mr. Minns made no mention of the "foreign body (tooth) in bronchus." When he called the attention of the coroner to this omission, he admitted, it is said, that there was a foreign body there, but that it "might have been a penicillin."

Looked Like a Tooth

Mr. O'Brien asserts that he and Mr. Minns then visited the hospital laboratory and examined the "foreign body." "It looked like a tooth to Mr. Minns and to me, and the physician finally said that he thought it was a tooth," he said.

The papers in the two cases were served on Dr. Crossman last week.

"It is a plain attempt to hold me up,"

Dr. Crossman said in an interview yesterday. "It is not true that I permitted a tooth to fall down Mrs. Minns's throat, or that she was under an anesthetic for forty-five minutes. There is no positive evidence that there was a tooth in her lung. Furthermore, teeth had been extracted from her prior to her visit to my office. Foreign bodies can, and frequently do, remain in the lungs of persons for indefinite periods, often years. I shall fight the case."

Brooklyn Bridge Menaced

Fire in Scaffold Threatens Damage to Structure

A fire, blame for which is attached to the traditional lighted cigarette stub, was discovered in a workman's scaffold under the north drive of Brooklyn Bridge at 8:30 o'clock last evening. Brooklyn Rapid Transit officials feared a repetition of the Williamsburg bridge fire. They were sure of it after sparks had blown to a four-story building at 2nd Front Street and ignited the roof.

Trucks 1 and 12 were called and the fire in the Front Street building was extinguished with water. The fire in the bridge scaffold was checked with hand extinguishers. The Front Street building is owned by the city. It is occupied by James Devine, an ash remover.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.

Deny False Statements Made

Santini's attorneys, Stanton & McDonald, of 51 Chambers Street, assert that he has been a revenue officer since the enactment of the Volstead act, although not serving in that capacity at present, but that he has never made any false representations as to his official status.

Charles S. Santini, forty years old, who says he is a real estate dealer at 2384 Belmont Avenue in the Bronx, was arrested yesterday on the charge of impersonating a police officer on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

John Filleguzzi, John Stevenson, Harry Kennedy and George De Soma, arrested yesterday by detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street station, on the charge of illegally transporting whisky from an Italian kitchen on West Forty-eighth Street, were each held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and their hearing was set for August 5.

Detectives Thornton, Cavanaugh and Farrington, of Brooklyn, seized three barrels of grain alcohol at the warehouse of Charles Cepello, 91 Hall Street, early yesterday morning on a tip from a woman who resides in an adjoining house that three men were loading the liquor on a wagon. The men escaped. The liquor is valued at $400 a barrel.